Òwhat does it mean to say that we live in a secular age Ó this apparently simple question opens into the massive provocative and complex a secular age where charles taylor positions secularism as a defining feature of the modern world not the mere absence of religion and casts light on the experience of transcendence that scientistic explanations of the world tend to neglect in varieties of secularism in a secular age a prominent and varied group of scholars chart the conversations in which a secular age intervenes and address wider questions of secularism and secularity the distinguished contributors include robert bellah jos casanova nil fer g le william e connolly wendy brown simon during colin jager jon butler jonathan sheehan akeel bilgrami john milbank and saba mahmood varieties of secularism in a secular age succeeds in conveying to readers the complexity of secularism while serving as an invaluable guide to a landmark book this book compares secularity in societies not shaped by western christianity particularly in asia the middle east and north africa churches often realize they need to change but if they re not careful the way they change can hurt more than help in this culmination of his well received ministry in a secular age trilogy leading practical theologian andrew root offers a new paradigm for understanding the congregation in contemporary ministry he articulates why congregations feel pressured by the speed of change in modern life and encourages an approach that doesn t fall into the negative traps of our secular age living in late modernity means our lives are constantly accelerated and calls for change in the church often support this call to speed up root asserts that the recent push toward innovation in churches has led to an acceleration of congregational life that strips the sacred out of time many congregations are simply unable to keep up which leads to burnout and depression when things move too fast we feel alienated from life and the voice of a living god the congregation in a secular age calls congregations to reimagine what change is and how to live into this future helping them move from relevance to resonance the loss or disaffiliation of young adults is a much discussed topic in churches today many faith formation programs focus on keeping the young believing the youthful spirit will save the church but do these programs have more to do with an obsession with youthfulness than with helping young people encounter the living god questioning the search for new or improved faith formation programs leading practical theologian andrew root offers an alternative take on the issue of youth drifting away from the church and articulates how faith can be formed in our secular age he offers a theology of faith constructed from a rich cultural conversation providing a deeper understanding of the phenomena of the nones and moralistic therapeutic deism root helps readers understand why forming faith is so hard in our context and shows that what we have lost is not the ability to keep people connected to our churches but an imagination for how and where god could be present in their lives he considers what faith is and what steps we can take to move into it exploring a pauline concept of faith as encounter with divine action the taylor effect presents an original and diverse collection of essays addressing charles taylorâ€™s magisterial A Secular Age ranging from close and critical readings of taylorâ€™s formulations and suppositions to comparative studies of taylor and various interlocutorsâ€™ to applied approaches utilizing taylorâ€™s concepts to explorations launched from a taylorian foundation the 13 chapters comprise a multifaceted exploration of taylorâ€™s multifaceted achievement given the vast synoptic sweep of taylorâ€™s magnum opus the contributors represent a suitably diverse range of interests backgrounds and expertiseâ€™ members of departments of philosophy literature philosophical theology systematic theology moral theology education and political science whose interests stretch from plato to girard phronesis to pedagogy deism to dogmatics medical ethics to aesthetics accordingly the taylor effect is not only one of the first major responses to a secular age the astonishing breadth as well as the quality of contributions will ensure that it remains a central reference point in any future discussion of taylorâ€™s work in faith formation in a secular age the first book in his ministry in a secular age trilogy andrew root offered an alternative take on the issue of youth drifting away from the church and articulated how faith can be formed in our secular age in the pastor in a secular age root explores how this secular age has impacted the identity and practice of the pastor obscuring his or her core vocation to call and assist others into the experience of ministry using examples of pastors throughout history from augustine and jonathan edwards to martin luther king jr and nadia bolz weber root shows how pastors have both perpetuated and responded to our secular age root turns to old testament texts and to the theology of robert jenson to explain how pastors can regain the important role of attending to people s experiences of divine action offering a new vision for pastoral ministry today this is a sparkling collection of essays by one of britain s best known and acute commentators of the church scene and of contemporary religious life martyn percy explores new liberalism the churches and human rights in the european union football and religion pilgrimage demonology common spirituality religious attitudes to nudity and the relationship between religion and advertising the argument running throughout this book is that despite claims and the appearance of increasing secularity the influence of religious themes and values on our everyday life remains pervasive we are currently living in what has been dubbed a secular age religious affiliation has gone down leading to a phenomenon in the west known as the rise of the nones at the same time from the time of the gospels the church understands herself to be charged by jesus christ with the obligation to make disciples of all nations mt 28 19 recent popes have likewise affirmed that we are obliged to go out and propose faith in jesus to the world beginning with john paul ii a new evangelization has been proposed where the church evangelizes and makes disciples in places where christian belief once was common but has now waned this work seeks first of all to advance the project of the new evangelization evangelization cannot happen in a vacuum however and we must be mindful of what people find credible just as jesus did not berate thomas for his doubt but rather gave thomas what he needed for belief so too the church cannot merely berate the modern world for unbelief but give it what it needs for belief thus it is necessary that we first ask what people need to believe in general in the first chapter drawing heavily from charles taylor s work a secular age we will get a feel for the conditions of belief in the contemporary world and then flesh out our notions by drawing upon various sociological and historical studies of current unbelief especially cristal manning s book losing our religion in the second chapter we once again begin with taylor focusing on the excarnate trend in knowing where starting in the enlightenment our senses feelings and experiences were obstacles to knowing we will then contrast this with the approach of 19th century british thinker john henry newman whose work grammar of assent sought to push back against these excarnating trends especially in the concept of the illative sense that he developed in the book finally we will explore how newman s personalism his grasp of the dignity of the whole person can be seen in how he proposes christianity for belief to others newman prioritizes reality over ideas and so will stress biblical images saints sacraments liturgy and history all as a way of gaining an image of the person of jesus from these images and experiences had by the whole person we may propose christianity in a credible manner and the church may continue to be faithful to her mandate from jesus to introduce him to all peoples religion is often viewed as a universally ancient element of the human inheritance but in the western himalayas the community of himachal pradesh discovered its religion only after india became an independent secular state based on extensive ethnographic and archival work becoming religious in a secular age tells the story of this discovery and how it transformed a community s relations to its past and to its members as well as to those outside the community and as mark elmore demonstrates himachali religion offers a unique opportunity to reimagine relations between religion and secularity elmore shows that modern secularity is not so much the eradication of religion as the very condition for its development showing us that to become a modern ethical subject is to become religious this book creatively augments our understanding of both religion and modernity we live in a secular age or so we have been told nevertheless the christian church strongly believes that we still experience and in fact are surrounded by acts of transcendence encounters with god that often defy imagination and explanation and yet we do try to explain such phenomena whether theologically experientially biblically historically philosophically literarily or even or especially artistically these two volumes are more than just papers from a major conference on secularism and the pursuit of transcendence held at mcmaster divinity college in hamilton ontario they contain genuine attempts by people deeply engaged with their secular surroundings to explain what we mean by transcendence transcendence has been a longstanding topic among the best thinkers of this and previous ages and the same is true for these volumes which include contributions by charles taylor robert wuthnow merold westphal and christina gschwandtner but also by a wide range of others who address the question from divergent vantage points the responses vary as much as the orientations of those involved in the pursuit of defining not only what it means to live in our secular age but to be involved in the pursuit of transcendence or even to perceive the transcendent s pursuit of us although historians have suggested for some time that we move away from the assumption of a necessary clash between science and religion the conflict narrative persists in contemporary discourse but why and how do we really know what people actually think about evolutionary science let alone the many and varied ways in which it might relate to individual belief in this multidisciplinary volume experts in history and philosophy of science oral history sociology of religion social psychology and science communication and public engagement look beyond two warring systems of thought they consider a far more complex multifaceted and distinctly more interesting picture of how differing groups along a spectrum of worldviews including atheistic agnostic and faith groups relate to and form the ongoing narrative of a necessary clash between evolution and faith by ascribing agency to the public from the nineteenth century to the present and across canada and the united kingdom this volume offers a much more nuanced analysis of people s perceptions about the relationship between evolutionary science religion and personal belief one that better elucidates the complexities not only of that relationship but of actual lived experience how secular governance in the middle east is making life worse not better for religious minorities the plight of religious minorities in the middle east is often attributed to the failure of secularism to take root in the region religious difference in a secular age challenges this assessment by examining four cornerstones of secularism political and civil equality minority rights religious freedom and the legal separation of private and public domains drawing on her extensive fieldwork in egypt with coptic orthodox christians and bahais religious minorities in a predominantly muslim country saba mahmood shows how modern secular governance has exacerbated religious tensions and inequalities rather than reduced them tracing the historical career of secular legal concepts in the colonial and postcolonial middle east she explores how contradictions at the very heart of political secularism have aggravated and amplified existing forms of islamic hierarchy bringing minority relations in egypt to a new historical impasse through a close examination of egyptian court cases and constitutional debates about minority rights conflicts around family law and controversies over freedom of expression mahmood invites us to reflect on the entwined histories of secularism in the middle east and europe a provocative work of scholarship religious difference in a secular age challenges us to rethink the promise and limits of the secular ideal of religious equality with the growth and tolerance of islam and the attitude of everyone should be able to believe whatever they want to believe it has become increasingly difficult to take a stand for the absolute truth as presented in god s word what are christians to do this workbook helps answer this important question
